I have seen people who are very good at their jobs but are poor at presenting themselves and, hence, do not convince the audience of their capabilities. Presentation is so crucially important and will make the difference between getting a sale or not. Some people are naturally good presenters, but brushing up on your skills in this area will prove profitable. There are lots of courses available that are good. Try Think Business where courses are cheap or even free. The ABC Marketing Institute also offers very good presentation skills courses. A good course will help you structure your presentations and improve your own personal style. I would recommend one that films you while you are presenting and then gives a critique of your style.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, had a great sense of delicacy ① where other persons’ feelings were concerned. He once paid a visit to George Meredith, the novelist, when Meredith was old and weak. Meredith suffered from an unusual disease that caused him ② to fall occasionally. The two men were walking up a path toward Meredith’s summerhouse, Conan Doyle in the lead, when Conan Doyle heard the old novelist fall behind him. He judged by the sound ③ which the fall was a mere slip and could not have hurt Meredith. Therefore, he did not turn and he strode on as if he ④ had heard nothing. “He was a fiercely proud old man,” Conan Doyle later explained, “and my instincts told me that his humiliation in being helped up would be ⑤ far greater than any relief I could give him.”

There is an old Japanese legend about a man renowned for his flawless manners visiting a remote village. Wanting to honor as well as observe him, the villagers prepared a banquet. As they sat to eat, all eyes were on their noble guest. Everyone looked at (A) [what / how] the man held his chopsticks, so that they could imitate him. But then, by an unfortunate accident, as the mannered man raised a slippery slice of tofu to his lips, he placed / was placed the tiniest bit of excess pressure on his chopsticks, propelling his tofu through the air and onto his neighbor’s lap. After a brief moment of surprise, in order to preserve the myth of their guest’s perfection and keep (C) [him / himself] from any embarrassment, all the villagers at the banquet began to fling tofu into each other’s laps.

The famous expression, “Keep your friends close, but keep your enemies even closer,” was exemplified well in Nelson Mandela’s attempt to learn Afrikaans, the language of his enemy. ① Mandela first began to learn the language of the Afrikaners, the white South Africans, in the 1960’s to the disapproval of his followers. ② They thought it was a waste of time, but Mandela felt that it was crucial for gaining insight into the world view of the Afrikaners. ③ By obtaining this perspective of how the Afrikaners looked at the world, he would be able to understand their strengths and weaknesses. ④ In many ways, Mandela’s greatest contribution as president of the South Africans including the Afrikaners was the way he chose to leave the presidency. ⑤ This understanding of the Afrikaners proved to be invaluable later in successfully persuading them to accept his people’s demands.

23. The ultimate power is the power to get people to do as you wish. When you can do this without having to force people or hurt them, when they willingly grant you what you desire, then your power is untouchable. The best way to achieve this position is to create a relationship of dependence. The master requires your services; he is weak, or unable to function without you; you have involved yourself in his work so deeply that doing away with you would bring him great difficulty, or at least would mean valuable time lost in training another to replace you. Once such a relationship is established, you have the upper hand to make the master do as you wish. It is the classic case of the servant of the king who actually __________ the king.

4 rescues 5 entertains

24. If you were a butterfly, would you be attracted to a more colorful flower or a less colorful one? Most of you would probably prefer the more colorful option. The same is true for pollinators such as bees and butterflies. For years, biologists have known that flowers use striking colors, scents, elaborately shaped petals, and nectar to attract pollinators. Recent studies, however, reveal another powerful tool of attraction used by flowers: __________________. Scientists have discovered that mobile flowers are visited more often by pollinating insects than their more static counterparts. It is almost as if the flowers are waving to the insects, saying, “Welcome. Come here and have a drink.” Along with this interesting finding, scientists have also concluded that, due to their greater range of motion, flowers with long, thin stalks attract more insects.

* pollinator: 꽃가루 매개자

① moving in the wind ② fancy color scheme
③ unique tasting nectar ④ having deep roots
⑤ receiving vocal messages

25. A brilliant friend of mine once told me, “When you suddenly see a problem, something happens that you have the answer—before you are able to put it into words. It is all done subconsciously. This has happened many times to me.” This feeling of knowing ____________________________ is common. The French philosopher and mathematician Blaise Pascal is famous for saying, “The heart has its reasons that reason cannot know.” The great nineteenth-century mathematician Carl Friedrich Gauss also admitted that intuition often led him to ideas he could not immediately prove. He said, “I have had my results for a long time; but I do not yet know how I am to arrive at them.” Fittingly so, sometimes true genius simply cannot be put into words.

① the meaning of the feelings in your heart
② without being able to say how one knows
③ the way others solve the problems they face
④ how to use the right words to persuade others
⑤ someone that you have never met before in your life

26. Researchers have come to understand how the African village weaverbird prevents itself from being taken advantage of by cuckoos—it is all down to the speckles on the eggs. David Lahti and his colleagues have described how village weaverbirds lay eggs which all show a very similar pattern of speckles, suggesting that if a cuckoo laid an egg in the nest, the weaverbird will be able to spot the foreign egg almost immediately. But when the researchers studied two colonies of the birds that had been introduced more than 200 years ago to two islands without any cuckoos, they found that those birds’ eggs no longer exhibited the same speckle patterns. In a neat demonstration of the power of evolution, these results show how, in the absence of pressure from parasitic cuckoos, the appearance of the eggs has altered because ____________________________.

* speckle: 얼룩, 반점   parasitic: 기생하는

① nest building instincts are determined by genetic factors
② having a similar pattern is no longer so much of an advantage
③ invasions by cuckoos have forced the birds to become strong
④ adapting to a new environment takes a certain amount of time
⑤ their unique speckle patterns attracted too many enemies
27. Why don’t we think differently more often? The reason is that we do not need to be creative for most of what we do. For example, we do not need to be creative when we are driving on the freeway, or riding in an elevator, or waiting in line at a grocery store. ______________ when it comes to the business of living. For most of our activities, these routines are indispensable. Without them, our lives would be in chaos, and we would not get much accomplished. If you got up this morning and started contemplating the shape of your toothbrush or questioning the meaning of toast, you probably would not make it to work.

28. In Chinese food, the idea is that it should be boiling hot, because that is crucial to its flavor, embodied in the phrase wok hei, which means the ‘breath’ or essence of the combination of tastes added by a hot wok. In 2005 Belgian researchers at Leuven University confirmed just how the link between temperature and taste works. They identified microscopic channels in our taste buds, which seem to respond differently at different temperatures. Apparently, the higher the temperature, the more intense the flavor. This is why ______________, which is why ice cream makers add stacks of sugar—as you can tell all too clearly when ice cream melts. In a similar way, some bitter tastes, like tea, taste better when hot because they are more intense.

* wok: 중국 요리용 냄비

1. ice cream tastes better when tea flavors are added
2. ice cream does not taste that sweet straight from the fridge
3. they serve ice cream for dessert in Chinese restaurants
4. it is not recommended to eat ice cream while drinking hot tea
5. ice cream tastes sweeter especially in the winter time

29. Unlike the novel, short story, or play, film is not handy to study; it cannot be effectively frozen on the printed page. The novel and short story are relatively easy to study because they are written to be read. The stage play is slightly more difficult to study because it is written to be performed. But plays are printed, and because they rely heavily on the spoken word, imaginative readers can create at least a pale imitation of the experience they might have watching a performance on stage. This cannot be said of the screenplay, for a film depends greatly on visual and other nonverbal elements that are not easily expressed in writing. The screenplay requires so much filling in by our imagination that we cannot really approximate the experience of a film by reading a screenplay, and reading a screenplay is worthwhile only if we have already seen the film. Thus, most screenplays ______________, [3]?

Every writer is starting from a different point and is bound for a different destination. Yet many writers are paralyzed by the thought that they are competing with everybody else who is trying to write and presumably doing it better. This can often happen in a writing class. Inexperienced students are chilled to find themselves in the same class with students whose articles have appeared in the college newspaper. But writing for the college paper is no great credit; I have often found that the hares who write for the paper are overtaken by the tortoises who move studiously toward the goal of mastering the craft. The same fear hangs around freelance writers, who see the work of other writers appearing in magazines while their own keeps returning in the mail. Forget the competition and go at your own pace.

The traditional American view was that fences were out of place in the American landscape. This notion turned up repeatedly in nineteenth-century American writing about the landscape. One author after another severely criticized “the Englishman’s insulsingly inhospitable brick wall topped with broken bottles.” Frank J. Scott, an early landscape architect who had a large impact on the look of America’s first suburbs, worked tirelessly to rid the landscape of fences. Writing in 1870, he held that to narrow our neighbors’ views of the free graces of Nature was unselfish and undemocratic. To drive through virtually any American suburb today, where every lawn steps right up to the street in a gesture of openness and welcoming, is to see how completely such views have triumphed.

A case of the negative impact of an innovation was reported by a researcher examining the spread of the snowmobile among the Skolt Lapps in northern Finland. The snowmobile offered considerable relative advantages to the Lapps who used reindeer sleds as their primary means of transportation. It was much faster, making trips for supplies more efficient. However, the snowmobile had (A) beneficial / disastrous effects on the Lapps.

First, the noise of the snowmobile frightened the reindeer, who in turn exhibited health problems and produced fewer calves each year. Herd sizes were (B) reduced / increased further by herdsmen who sold some of their reindeer to buy a snowmobile. With smaller herds, the Lapps found it more difficult to survive, and the snowmobile was eventually viewed as a product that drove the Lapps into (C) poverty / wealth.

33. One of the most potentially productive trends in education today is the focus on interdisciplinary studies: teaching math as it applies to science, for example, or relating the various humanities. This applies to art education, too. If we trivialize art and remove it from the core of a mainstream education, we not only deny our students full access to one of humankind’s most profound experiences, but we miss countless opportunities to improve their grasp of other subjects as well. Moreover, we deny students access to an extremely useful kind of training and a productive mode of thought. We should also consider that the more legitimately we weave art into the fabric of the general curriculum, the better our students will understand the important role art plays in culture.

34. Our love for another person pulls us out of ourselves and lifts our thoughts to a grander scale: How can I make the world better for this person? When I was young, the only love I experienced was the immature, selfish love of “I love her because she makes me feel good.” Now I think about the woman I love in terms of what she wants. I want to make her happy because I cannot be happy when she is unhappy. We discover that the act of giving true love is more powerful than getting the hug you need—if we can get over our own hunger for love, then we have reached the state of pure love, of being connected to a larger ideal, bigger than our own individual life.

The graph above shows the percentage of population growth and forest loss in the continents of the world since 1990.

1. Africa shows the highest percentage of population growth, whereas Europe shows the lowest percentage of population growth.
2. Africa also shows the highest percentage of forest loss, followed by Latin America, Oceania, Asia and North America.
3. The only continent that exhibits a negative percentage in forest loss, which translates to forest gain, is Europe.
4. A point of note is that while Asia and Oceania have similar percentages of population growth, Oceania displays less forest loss than Asia.
5. Overall, there are only two continents whose percentage of forest loss is greater than five percent.

36. Jaisalmer에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하는 것은?

Known as the Golden City, Jaisalmer, a former caravan center on the route to the Khyber Pass, rises from a sea of sand, its 30-foot-high walls and medieval sandstone fort sheltering palaces that soar into the sapphire sky. With its tiny winding lanes and hidden temples, Jaisalmer is straight out of The Arabian Nights. So little has the way of life altered here that it is easy to imagine yourself back in the 13th century. It is the only fortress city in India still functioning, with one quarter of its population living within the walls. It is just far enough off the beaten path to have been spared damage from tourists. The city’s wealth originally came from the substantial tolls it placed on passing merchants.

One of the common mistakes that employers make is Science, of course, is an indispensable source of validation, reliable, and comprehensive, are not literature. Whatever becomes a work of art of any kind does so as a result of an act of creation, an act of artistic imagination. But science is not in itself an elemental well-spring of literature. Even the most refined and precise research data are only raw materials which may or may not become literature. For whatever becomes a work of art of any kind does so as a result of an act of creation, an act of artistic composition, an act involving the art of make-believe. 39. One of the common mistakes that employers make is looking at a team of employees as a homogeneous group that rises and falls together. Offering incentives, such as a group bonus or a vacation trip, to a team as a whole is not a smart managerial move because it fails to acknowledge who an individual is. For example, sending an entire team to Hawaii for a job well done actually discourages an employee’s efforts to do his best work. He only needs to perform well enough to help achieve the team objective. If, on the other hand, the employee knew that individual rewards were possible, he would be more likely to strive to outperform expectations. While teamwork is important within a corporation, management should come up with new compensation packages to help individuals to become champions.

Fortunately, one of the most sustained research programs in postwar musicology has succeeded in reconstructing their original sequence. Beethoven took scraps of paper with him on his frequent walks, writing down his musical ideas as they came to him. (①) At home, he kept large sketchbooks into which he might copy the results or enter new ideas, fashioning and re-fashioning the music, crossing it out and starting again. (②) After Beethoven’s death these sketchbooks were scattered and in many cases broken up. (③) As a result, you can work through them and trace the painful process by which Beethoven edged toward the music that we know. (④) For instance, while the first section of the “Ode to Joy” seems to have come to him with little difficulty, the middle section gave him enormous trouble; there is sketch upon sketch in which Beethoven tries one idea, then another. (⑤) And you find that the most characteristic and expressive features of the music come together only during the final stages of the compositional process.

41. Many theatergoers have been offered lots of good plays including West Side Story, The King and I, and Dracula for several decades. However, they have hardly ever seen new works recently because many producers have avoided making a new play. Part of the reason may be the tremendous cost of making a new production these days. It is true that many producers asked to invest a few hundred thousand dollars in a production have preferred a play of proven merit and past success to a new, untried play. That sounds like a reasonable excuse but, in fact, this practice can lead to an undesirable situation. Unless new plays are given a chance today, there will be nothing to revive in the future.

42. If you compare a walnut with some of the beautiful and exciting things that grow on our planet, it does not seem to be a marvelous creation. It is common, rough, not particularly attractive, and certainly not of much value. Besides, it is small. Its growth is limited by the hard shell that surrounds it—the shell from which it never escapes during its lifetime. Of course, that is the wrong way to judge a walnut. Break one open and look inside. See how the walnut has grown to fill every corner available to it. However, given those limitations, it achieved its full growth. How lucky we will be if, like the walnut, we blossom and bloom in every aspect of the life that is given us. Take heart! If one nut can do it, so can you.

Jim performed fieldwork in Lesotho, a small nation in Africa. There, studying and interacting with local villagers, he patiently earned their trust until one day he was asked to join in one of their songs.

(A) The villagers found his response puzzling. They just stared at Jim and said, “What do you mean you don’t sing? You talk!” Jim recalls later, “It was as odd to them as if I told them that I couldn’t walk or dance, even though I have both my legs.”

(B) Jim replied in a soft voice, “I don’t sing,” and it was true. Although he was an excellent oboe player, he was unable to sing a simple melody.

(C) That’s because singing and dancing were a natural activity in their lives, involving everyone. Their word for singing, hobina, also means ‘to dance’; there is no distinction, since it is assumed that singing involves bodily movement.

And also in a moment his heart responded thrillingly to this novel mood. An instantaneous and strong impulse moved him to battle with his desperate fate. He would pull himself out of despair; he would make a man of himself again; he would conquer the evil that had taken possession of him. There was time; he was comparatively young yet: he would revive his old eager ambitions and pursue them without faltering. Those solemn but sweet organ notes had set up a revolution in him. Tomorrow he would go into the roaring downtown district and find work. A fur importer had once offered him a place as driver. He would find him tomorrow and ask for the position. He would be somebody in the world.

If someone were to say “Life is a cup of coffee,” it is unlikely that you would have heard this expression before. But its novelty forces you to think about its meaning. The vehicle used, a cup of coffee, is a common object of everyday life and therefore easily perceivable as a source for thinking about that life. The metaphor compels you to start thinking of life in terms of the kinds of physical, social, and other attributes that are associated with a cup of coffee. For this metaphor to gain currency, however, it must capture the fancy of many other people for a period of time. Then and only then will its novelty have become worn out and will it become the basis for a new conceptual metaphor: life is a drinking substance. After that, expressions such as “life is a cup of tea, life is a bottle of beer, life is a glass of milk,” will become similarly understandable as offering different perspectives on life.

A new metaphor initially makes people (A) ... its meaning; if it loses its novelty later by gaining (B)...

(A) [reflect on ... sincerity]  (B) [reflect on ... popularity]
① depart from ... morality
② depart from ... popularity
③ expand on ... sincerity

(A)

Sometimes, someone saying you can’t do something is good for you. It builds mental toughness and conviction. I often tell people, “Anyone with young children will tell you, if you ask them not to do something, they’re guaranteed to do it.” The following story is an example of how my dad used this to (a) his (and ultimately my) advantage.

(B)

I was so annoyed and upset by (b) his response that I worked tirelessly for the remainder of the school year. In those critical few months I worked so hard that I ended up winning three awards at the end of year prize-giving. The best part was being able to tell my dad that I’d been awarded a place at college. On hearing this news, he simply lowered his newspaper and, with a smile, said, “Well done, I always knew you would.” At that moment, I realized what (c) he had done by ‘discouraging’ me.

(C)

This was my first experience of ‘reverse psychology.’ Some people might say it’s a risky strategy, but it has certainly worked for me. It has been extremely valuable in my life, giving me the confidence, determination and motivation to succeed, even when the odds are stacked against me. Now as a father myself, I sometimes use the same technique to motivate my own son. Often enough, he ends up with favorable results. I just hope one day (d) he also realizes that I had his best interests in mind.

(D)

As a child I wasn’t particularly academic or ambitious, and certainly didn’t work very hard at my studies. It wasn’t until I was coming to the end of the eleventh grade—and facing the prospect of leaving school without any sense of what I wanted to do as a career—that I decided to apply to the local college to pursue further study. Feeling pleased with myself for having made this monumental decision, I proudly announced my plan to my dad. (e) His immediate reaction was to say, “You’ll never do that. They’ll never accept you.”

50. Serafina에 관한 위 글의 내용과 일치하는 것은?

① 우유를 짜기 전에 간단한 아침 식사를 준비한다. ② 여름에 목초지에서 건초를 베어 수레로 운반한다. ③ 사람들이 대화하는 것을 좋아하지 않는다. ④ 돈이 많아 생기도 흉소 하던 일을 계속한 생각이다. ⑤ TV를 보지 않고 잡지도 읽지 않는다.

*Serafina Vinon, a seventy-six-year-old woman from the Italian Alps, still gets up at five in the morning to milk her cows. Afterward she cooks a huge breakfast, cleans the house, and depending on the weather and time of year, either takes the herd to the meadow, tends the orchard, or card some wool. In summer she spends weeks on the high pastures cutting hay and then carries huge piles of it on her head the several miles down to the barn. She could reach the barn in half the time if she took a direct route, but she prefers following invisible winding trails to save the slopes from erosion.

When Serafina was asked what she enjoys doing most in life, she had no trouble answering: milking the cows, taking them to the pasture, tending the orchard, carding wool. In effect what she enjoys most is what she has been doing for a living all along. In her own words, “It gives me a great satisfaction to be outdoors, to talk with people, and to be with my animals. I talk to everybody—plants, birds, flowers, and animals. Everything in nature keeps you company; you see nature progress every day.”

When Serafina was asked what she would do if she had all the time and money in the world, Serafina laughed—and repeated the same list of activities. It is not that Serafina is ignorant of the alternatives offered by urban life. She watches television occasionally and reads newspapers. But their more fashionable and modern way of life does not attract Serafina; she is ________________ the role she plays in the universe.
