[1점]

This means the ability to continue doing something even if you do not see any results immediately. We can see this in a teacher who works with young children. She may not be feeling very well that day, but she smiles and does not get angry when a child misbehaves. We can see this in a clerk who is polite to a customer even though the clerk has already been at work for seven or eight hours. In our modern society, people often lack this. People nowadays expect immediate results all the time.

- ① fear
- ② hatred
- ③ patience
- ④ anger
- ⑤ courage

19. 밑줄 친 He[he]가 가리키는 대상이 나머지 넷과 다른 것은?

Mr. Gibson tried to get David to sit up and pay attention in his class. He really wanted to help the boy to feel like ① he was part of the class. The kid certainly seemed to be lazy. And ② he acted like a spoiled kid, too. But Mr. Gibson had noticed something else. A lot of the time, the boy looked sad. For two weeks, ③ he hadn't made even one friend. This year's fifth-graders were some of the nicest children ④ he'd taught. So Mr. Gibson didn't think it was their fault. It had to be David's fault. ⑤ He was keeping himself cut off on purpose.

20. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은?

Paul was an old man who ① lived under a bridge in the streets of Paris. He begged for money to keep himself ② warm and fed, and he liked his carefree life. Then one day just before Christmas a sick mother and her three children walked into his life. Though he tried ③ to ignore their troubles, Paul soon found ④ himself caring for the family and sharing his unusual home under the bridge with them. But the children missed having a home of their own. How could he make their Christmas wish ⑤ to come true?

23. Vancouver Olympic organizers announced that they cannot allow women ski jumpers to compete next year. Fifteen female ski jumpers are in the British Columbia Supreme Court this week, insisting that the court should order the Vancouver Organizing Committee either to hold women's ski jumping in 2010 or to cancel all ski jumping events. While three men's events are planned at next February's Games, none are included for women. The women argue that their _____ by the International Olympic Committee is against Canadian human rights laws.

- ① exclusion ② ceremony ③ training
- ④ competition ⑤ participation

24. On October 30, 1938, the Earth was invaded by creatures from Mars! Or at least that's what thousands of radio listeners believed in the United States. Some rushed to the roads to escape, and others hid in their basements. Actually, on that evening, Orson Welles directed and starred in a radio broadcast, The War of the Worlds. The radio play was based on a book of the same title by H. G. Wells, an English writer. It described a fictional attack on New Jersey by invaders from Mars. The broadcast was not of a real event — but it seemed so real that it _____. It was not surprising that many radio listeners believed what they heard on the radio in those days.

- ① made a good laugh
- ② caused a national panic
- ③ sounded like a good idea
- ④ created a welcoming mood
- ⑤ led to a rapid population growth

25. Ironically, the Alps are becoming victims of _____. In a strange twist of fate, this vast and beautiful European mountain chain is being destroyed by the very tourists it attracts. Every year, 20 million skiers visit the Alps. The Alpine roads are blocked by many vacationers in traffic jams. Off the roads, the Alpine area is threatened by the flood of very noisy motorcycles, off-road vehicles, snowmobiles and helicopters. Moreover, snow guns create artificial surfaces for skiers, which breaks the weak Alpine environment.

- ① polluted air
- ② human distrust
- ③ their own beauty
- ④ their wild animals
- ⑤ dangerous ski slopes

26. In the South American rain forest, there is a tribe called the Desana. They see the world as a fixed amount of energy that flows between all creatures. Therefore, every birth must replace a death, and every death brings about another birth. This way, the energy of the world _____. When they hunt for food, the Desana believe that the animals they kill will leave a hole in the spiritual world. But that hole will be filled by the souls of the hunters when they die. If there were no men dying, there would be no birds or fish being born.

- ① gets stronger ② grows constantly
③ becomes useless ④ remains unchanged
⑤ disappears gradually

27. It seems that we cannot go a day without hearing about or using 'LED'(Light-Emitting Diode). Many third-generation mobile phones, the latest television sets and notebook computers include LEDs. So what exactly are LEDs? Basically, they are an advanced electronic light source that presents numerous advantages over traditional lamps. LEDs are not only smaller and lighter compared to fluorescent lamps, but they also use less energy, last much longer and have a clearer contrast and sharper colors. In other words, LEDs are _____.

* fluorescent lamp: 형광등

I put the bag of food inside my shirt. I tried to look calm with a paper bag down the front of my shirt, walking towards the fence. I was about fifty feet from the fence when I heard Milo shout, "Hey, you! Come back here!" I started running for the fence. Milo screamed again. "Come back here or I'll send my dog after you!" That only made me run even faster for the fence. And Milo yelled, "Get him, Chopper! Go and get him!" I threw the bag over the fence. Behind me, I could hear Chopper coming, shaking the earth, breathing fire and ice from his nose.

32. People from warmer regions tend to use hand gestures more than people from colder ones. In Europe, this means people from the southern countries like Greece gesture more than people from northern ones like Sweden. The reason for this cultural difference can be simply explained. The hands are the main source for gesturing. In extremely cold climates, a person is more likely to keep her hands in her coat pocket while speaking. On the other hand, in warmer climates, a person doesn't have to do this. She can use her hands freely to emphasize what she's saying.

33. Life is like a river for many people. They just jump in the river of life without ever knowing where they want to go. They quickly get caught up in the flow of the river. When they come to a fork in the river, they find it difficult to decide which way to go by themselves. So they just go the same way that everyone else goes without paying attention to their own values and goals. All of a sudden they are too close to a waterfall, and they realize it's too late to change course. In almost all of the cases, they could have avoided the fall by making better decisions upstream.

34. 다음 글의 주장으로 가장 적절한 것은?

Nowadays it seems there are fewer places to take a walk in the city. Meanwhile, with remote controls and computers, we can have just about anything we want without even getting out of our chair. Physical activity is so rare that experts suggest you should do some sort of extra movement throughout the day. Next time when you go shopping, park at the far end of the lot instead of next to the door. Get rid of the remote control so that changing the channel means getting off the couch. Take a few flights of stairs instead of using the elevator.

Koreans have a long history of papermaking and have always used native good-quality paper. Korea's oldest paper, called Maji, was made from hemp. Maji is produced using the following steps. First, small pieces of hemp are soaked in water for some time and then cut into tiny pieces. Next, these pieces are turned into a slippery pulp by using a grindstone. After that, it is steamed, cleansed with water, ground again and placed in a tank. This raw material is pressed onto a frame and sun-dried while being whitened. This method of papermaking was most popular during the Three Kingdoms period.

38. Many teenagers spend hours online. They move from site to site, check e-mails and chat with their friends. Are they reading? Well, reading should be an activity that requires focused attention for an extended period of time. When you read books, you create pictures in your mind to go along with the story. So reading books is a mentally stimulating activity. But a lot of the reading that we do online is not the same sustained, focused reading that we do when we read books. If you spend most of your time online, then you're not getting the full benefits of reading.

* sustained: 지속적인

39. Humans are exceptionally good at recognizing faces they've seen before. It doesn't take much effort to accurately recall whether you've seen a particular face or not. However, this doesn't work out when faces come from unfamiliar races. A white person who lives primarily among other whites will have more difficulty recognizing Asian faces, and vice versa. That's why people need more experience to recognize the faces of other races. It is as difficult as recognizing any new category of objects such as cars and birds.

However, despite these benefits, safety issues have been raised about these green vehicles.

Electric cars have many advantages compared to traditional ones. (①) They do not cause air pollution and global warming by emitting carbon dioxide. (②) They also produce less noise pollution because they run quietly on battery power. (③) For example, it is difficult to hear an electric car coming. (④) So it could be dangerous to some pedestrians, especially the blind. (⑤) In response to this concern, groups of scholars, blind people, and police insist that a sound-making function should be introduced in these eco-friendly vehicles.

41. One researcher has argued that doctors and patients talk to each other with different voices. The voices of doctors are characterized by medical terms that describe physical symptoms. The voices of patients, on the other hand, often include non-technical terms about how they feel and how they live their lives. Typically, doctors have more power than patients in the interaction between them. As a result, patients may feel that their voices are ignored or silenced.

- ③ Influence of Patients on a Doctor's Voice
- ④ Effective Communication Skills among Co-workers
- ⑤ Communication Gap between Doctors and Patients

42. Dinosaurs are often shown in movies as huge monsters, the size of skyscrapers. They may be given amazing powers, like the ability to breathe fire, or incredible physical strength. But there is no scientific evidence to support such reconstructions. Although dinosaurs were large, no known dinosaur was over 165 feet long. The Velociraptors in Jurassic Park were described as far larger than the real animals to make them seem even scarier. The idea of fire-breathing dinosaurs probably comes from the old stories of imaginary monsters such as dragons. Dinosaurs and dragons were both large—but dinosaurs were real, whereas dragons were not.

On the island of New Guinea live some of the most spectacular and colorful birds in the world, named 'birds of paradise.'

- (A) He investigated why there are so many kinds. He noticed that they don't fly far from their homes because of the island's high mountains and deep valleys.
- (B) Joel Cracraft, a scientist at the American Museum of Natural History, researched these birds and found that there are more than 90 kinds of 'birds of paradise' on New Guinea.
- (C) This behavior prevented the birds from contacting with other groups. Under these isolated situations, new genes for survival emerged and were passed down to the next generations, which explains how new species have come to be.

There were two fathers I knew. Although both of them worked hard, I noticed that one dad had a habit of putting his brain to sleep when it came to money matters, and the other had a habit of exercising his brain. The long-term result was that one dad grew weaker and the other grew stronger financially. It is not much different from a person who sits on the couch watching television versus someone who goes to the gym to exercise on a regular basis. Proper physical exercise increases your chances for health, and proper mental exercise increases your chances for wealth.

(A) It was my mother's first visit since the death of my husband with cancer. I arrived at Portland airport to discover that her flight had been delayed. So I decided to sit down and have coffee. Then (a) a woman came in and also ordered coffee. I asked which flight she was waiting for. Susan, as she introduced herself, was waiting for the same plane. We both said that we had forgotten to check arrival times before heading for the airport.

(B) On the way, she told me she, too, had lost her husband to cancer. (b) She gave me a lovely lunch. Later we found there had been further delays. We ended up spending the whole day before it was time to head back. The plane finally arrived at midnight, so it would have been a very long wait alone.

(C) That was 12 years ago. (c) Susan and I still contact each other and we have spent many happy times together since our first meeting at the airport. She has become a wonderful friend I can rely on whenever needed. I will be forever thankful that we both forgot to check the flight arrivals that day.

(D) Afterwards we headed for the information desk and asked an airline worker. (d) She told us that the flight had been delayed eight hours. I didn't want to drive home and back again. Neither did I want to sit at the airport all that time. Susan said (e) she was going home and asked if I'd like to go home with her until the flight arrived. "That would be lovely," I replied.

[49~50] 다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

Some elementary school teachers in the U.S. might be thinking "Recess is free time for the students." or "Why should I care about recess?" In reality, recess has become more important than ever. Since physical education at the elementary level has seen a decline in recent years, recess has in fact become _____ for children to participate in physical activity in school.

With this in mind, what should happen during recess is that students have a chance to participate in physical activity in a setting that is helpful for learning. What actually occurs is that students are left to engage in unorganized activities during this 'free time.'

As a matter of fact, recess is much more than free time. Recess should be viewed as an opportunity for students not only to engage in physical activity, but also to build their character and develop social interaction skills. Therefore, the classroom teachers must realize that recess is an important part of the school day.

* recess: 쉬는 시간
