M: Sally, what are you doing this afternoon?
W: I’m thinking of going to Kingsfield Shopping Mall.
M: Oh, you mean the new shopping mall on Pine Street. But it’s closed today.
W: ________________________________
W: Nick, you need to be at the train station early tomorrow morning, right?
M: Yes, Mom. I set an alarm clock for five thirty, but I’m worried about getting up on time.
W: Do you want me to wake you up?
M: ________________________________
W: Good afternoon, Brook High School students. This is Ms. Kim, and I’m in charge of this year’s graduation album. As it was previously announced, senior students will take photos for their graduation album tomorrow. It was scheduled to take place at Shinewood Park. However, we’re expecting heavy rain tomorrow, so we’ve changed the location. Students will have their class photos taken in the school auditorium and individual photos in the school library. Please don’t forget that the location for graduation photos has changed. Thank you for listening.
M: Hey, Jane. Your birthday is coming!
W: Yes, it’s this Friday, Sam. It’s going to be a fun party.
M: I’m so excited to go. Do you have a birthday wish list?
W: Do you mean a list of presents I’d like to receive for my birthday?
M: Yes. It would help me get the right gift for you.
W: I feel a little uncomfortable making a birthday wish list.
M: But it can keep you from getting presents that you don’t want or need.
W: Well, I guess my friends and family would know what I like.
M: That can be a problem as well. Last year, my father gave me a book for my birthday, and then I received another copy from my grandmother.
W: That’s funny. I see what you mean. I’ll make a birthday wish list then.
M: Great, let me know when your wish list is ready.
M: We’re all finished, Ms. Johnson.
W: How was the operation? I’m worried about my son.
M: Don’t be. I specialize in this kind of knee surgery. It went very well.
W: Thank you. I’m so relieved. How long will he have to stay in the hospital?
M: I think he can return home in two weeks.
W: Can he go back to school then?
M: Yes, he can. But he should be very careful, though. He shouldn’t run or play soccer for the next few months.
W: Of course. I’ll make sure of that.
M: And he should visit me every week for the next two months during his recovery.
W: Yes, he will. Thank you for everything.
W: Dad! Do you remember this picture?
M: Wow, it’s an old photo. When was it taken? Were you thirteen?
W: I think so. I love the two birds flying in the sky.
M: Yeah, it was a really beautiful day. Oh, I remember the hat you’re wearing in the picture.
W: Yes, you bought it for my birthday. It was my favorite hat that summer.
M: And there’s a book next to the bag. You always brought a book wherever you went.
W: Right. Look at our dog, Sparky! He’s running around the beach.
M: He’s such a good dog.
W: Oh, there’s a sandcastle under the tree.
M: It’s lovely. Somebody must have enjoyed making it.
W: We had so much fun. We should go back there someday.
M: That would be great.

M: Mandy, are you ready for our fishing trip this weekend?
W: Yes, honey. I’m so excited. It’s going to be my first ocean fishing experience. I’ve already posted about the trip on my blog.
M: We’re going to have a wonderful time. Let’s take a lot of pictures.
W: That’ll be great. Oh, I bought waterproof jackets for us.
M: Thanks. We’ll need them to keep ourselves dry.
W: Right. Is there anything else we need to prepare?
M: Hmm... We might need to bring some food for the trip.
W: Okay, I’ll make some sandwiches. Do we also need to bring our own fishing rods?
M: No, we don’t. The fishing tour company will provide them for us.
W: Great. Can you call to confirm our reservation?
M: I already did that an hour ago.
W: Thank you, sweetheart.
W: Hi, Matt. How was the history exam?
M: It was okay. But I’m glad it’s over.
W: Yeah. Let’s do something fun. I heard there’s a new movie out. It’s about a friendly robot.
W: Yes. Do you want to see that movie tonight with me?
M: Well, I’m afraid I can’t go.
W: Why not?
M: I have to work in the school library tonight.
W: I thought you were not supposed to work in the library today.
M: I wasn’t. But my co-worker is attending her grandmother’s birthday party tonight, so I’ve changed my schedule for her.
W: I see. Maybe next time.
M: Well, I do have tickets for a baseball game this Saturday. Do you want to go together?
W: That would be wonderful.
M: Welcome to Julie’s Cafe. What can I get for you?
W: Your coffee smells very good. Do you have any recommendations?
M: How about our Julie’s Coffee? It uses fresh coffee beans.
W: Sounds great. How much is it?
M: A hot coffee is three dollars and an iced one is four dollars.
W: I’ll get three iced coffees to go.
M: Sure, three iced Julie’s Coffees. Anything else? We also have really good waffles.
W: Oh, how much are they?
M: A regular waffle is 10 dollars. But if you pay two dollars more, you can enjoy it with vanilla ice cream.
W: Well, I’m not a big fan of ice cream. Just one regular waffle.
M: All right. Then, three iced Julie’s Coffees and one regular waffle to go.
W: Right. Here’s my credit card.
W: Hey, Mike.
M: Hi, Kelly.
W: You’ve been very busy these days.
M: Yes, I’ve been preparing for my wedding next month.
W: How’s it going?
M: Good. Here’s a wedding invitation for you.
W: Thank you so much. It’s on October 5th, right?
M: Yes. And we’re getting married at City Hall.
W: That’ll be great. So, I heard you’re going to have a small wedding.
M: That’s right. We’ve only invited 50 people, just family and close friends.
W: Sounds great. I’m glad you included me. I’ll definitely be there to congratulate you on your wedding.
M: I’m so happy that you can come. You know what? I’m planning to sing a song for my bride as a special event.
W: Oh, that’s so sweet. It’ll be a perfect day.
Hello, listeners! The International Air Show is coming back to our town. This year, 10 countries will participate in the show, bringing over 100 aircraft in total. It’ll take place at the Air Force Museum on November 23rd and 24th. Participating airplanes will fly in fantastic formations and show thrilling performances. After the flying performances, there will be an autograph event. Retired legendary pilots will be there to meet their fans and sign autographs. In addition, visitors can get in the planes that are on display. Enjoy all this for just 20 dollars. Children ages eight and under get free admission. Parking spaces are limited. However, free shuttle buses will operate from Central Station to the museum. Come and enjoy the show!

W: Justin, I’m thinking of buying one of these portable speakers. Can you help me choose one?
M: Sure. There are five products to select from. How much can you spend?
W: My maximum budget is 60 dollars.
M: I see. Where are you going to use the speaker?
W: Mostly at home. It should weigh less than one kilogram though.
M: Right. If it’s light, you can use it wherever you want at home. How about the battery life?
W: It needs to last longer than eight hours.
M: Okay. How about the design? I recommend you get one with fabric. It’ll create a warmer atmosphere in your house.
W: Good idea. A fabric one will be a good match with my bedroom.
M: Then, this is the best speaker for you.
W: It is. I’ll buy it now.
M: Hi, Sujin. Congratulations on being elected president of the student council.
W: Thank you, Mr. Williams.
M: You’re going to be very busy. Aren’t you also playing the flute in the school orchestra?
W: Right. And I’m editing the school English newspaper as well.
M: Wow! That’s a lot. Isn’t it going to be tough to handle all of those responsibilities?
W: I think so, too. Actually, I was considering quitting either the orchestra or the newspaper. Do you have any advice?
M: Hmm... You might want to think about what it is that you’re interested in. It would be even better if it’s your passion.
W: I totally agree. You know, I’m in the orchestra only because my dad wanted me to join.
M: I see. Then, do you like editing the school newspaper?
W: Yes, I enjoy it. I want to be a journalist someday.
M: It seems to me that the newspaper is your passion.

W: Good morning, Mr. Smith.
M: Hello, Ms. Brown. How’s your geography class going?
W: It’s going well. My class just finished learning about Western Europe.
M: Good. What are you going to do next?
W: I’m going to cover Southeast Asia. Oh, didn’t you live in Thailand for a while?
M: Yes. I lived there for three years.
W: Well, I’m going to teach my students about Thai holidays and food next week, but I have a problem.
M: What’s the matter?
W: I’m familiar with Thai food, but I don’t have any personal experience of Thai holidays.
M: Oh, I can help you with that. I experienced many Thai holidays while I was there. I might have some pictures.
W: Wow, that’s great. Could you find them for me? I’m looking for some visual materials for my class.

M: Steven is a newcomer on Ms. Green’s marketing team. Ms. Green, as the leader, asked him to prepare for a presentation about consumer behavior. When reviewing his first draft of the presentation, she realized that Steven included incorrect data from the Internet. When she asked about it, Steven said that he uses only Internet sources. The problem is he doesn’t check if that information is reliable. But Ms. Green is aware that information on the Internet is not always accurate. So, Ms. Green wants to tell Steven to check whether the information he finds on the Internet is correct. In this situation, what would Ms. Green most likely say to Steven?

W: Good morning, Healthy Life listeners! A drop in temperature signals the start of cold season. Today, I’ll introduce some foods to get you through a cold. Ginger is an effective treatment for colds. This amazing root can offer relief by making the body warmer and by attacking the cold virus. Mushrooms contain important vitamins, fiber and minerals. They enhance the activity of the white blood cells involved in protecting us from colds. Mushrooms also help activate superhero cells that find and destroy infections. Spinach is loaded with nearly every vitamin you can think of. Adding more spinach to your diet can improve overall bodily health, which will help you recover quickly from a cold. Yogurt is filled with good bacteria, called probiotics, which keep bad bacteria from increasing in number. These good bacteria can support the immune system and help prevent secondary infections from a cold. I hope you find this information helpful with cold season approaching. Have a good day.
