18. 밑줄 친 this가 가리키는 것으로 가장 적절한 것은?

When this shows the road system, it will show us how to drive from one place to another. And the more detailed it is, the more fully it will reflect reality. But an extremely detailed one will not be useful for some purposes. For example, when we travel from one city to another on a major expressway, we will be confused if it includes much information unrelated to driving. So it needs to simplify reality in a way that best serves our purposes.

- ① a compass ② a map ③ a photograph
- ④ a traffic light ⑤ a road sign

19. 다음 글에서 밑줄 친 It(it)이 가리키는 대상이 나머지 넷과 다른 것은? [1점]

I took my bottled firefly to the roof. Seeing ① it make a faint glow in the bottom of the jar, I gave the jar a few shakes. ② It bumped against the glass walls and tried to fly, but its light remained too dim. I hadn't seen fireflies in years, but the ones in my memory seemed to send more intense light. I put the jar on a box and twisted ③ it open. I took the firefly out, in an attempt to set ④ it free. Finally, ⑤ it spread its wings and flew into the darkness.

20. 다음 글에서 전체 흐름과 관계 없는 문장은?

An organization called ZERI(Zero Emissions Research and Initiatives) was founded to promote the principle that the wastes generated in the manufacturing process must provide resources for something new. ① The communities around Columbian coffee farms are good illustrations of the basic ZERI method. ② When the coffee beans are harvested, the remains of the coffee plant are used to grow mushrooms. ③ The remains of the mushrooms are rich in protein, so they are used to feed cattle and pigs. ④ Mushrooms are known as a good source of vitamins and minerals for vegetarians. ⑤ Cattle and pigs produce sludge, which fertilizes the coffee farms and surrounding vegetable gardens.

21. 다음 글을 쓴 목적으로 가장 적절한 것은?

I was recently standing in the Express Checkout Line. There was a bit of a problem with one register and its line was growing longer. Your employee, Karen, jumped in and opened another register. As I saw her approaching the new register, I expected the usual disorder. Usually the person who has been waiting the least amount of time runs to the new line first, then, everyone gets pretty frustrated. But Karen looked right at the person who'd been waiting the longest and said, "I believe you're next." What she did made everyone actually act like an adult. I was greatly impressed.

24. The biggest problem teens have with money is that they don't think about _____. Without them, it's difficult not to spend everything you earn. Tabitha, a college student, remembers what it was like when she first got a job. "When I first started working," she says, "I was hasty in spending money on things I don't even remember now." Then, she decided to buy a car. But the items she bought at the mall left her with no savings. Tabitha made a two-year savings plan. She calculated how much money she needed for the car. Then she stopped making impulse purchases of items such as a new swimsuit, movie tickets, and CDs. Finally, Tabitha bought the car. She loves it.

- ① financial aids ② credit cards ③ fashion items
- ④ part-time jobs ⑤ long term goals

25. Scientists tackled the mystery of how the ant measures distance. A simple experiment gave the answer. They set up a narrow track along which the ant had to travel from its burrow. After going thirty feet in a single direction, the ant found a dead insect placed there by the scientists. The ant now wished to retrace its steps and return to its burrow; instead, the scientists forced it to go back along a different track much longer than the first. After going thirty feet, the ant stopped and began searching for its burrow. This shows that the ant measures the distance it has traveled by _____.

* burrow: 개미굴

- ① erasing the track ② counting its footsteps
- ③ hearing other ants ④ smelling the dead insect
- ⑤ moving in a line

26. Every year, TIME Magazine collects the coolest inventions from all over the world. The Flower Lamp from 'STATIC!' is one of the nominees in 2006. It was created by a Swedish company called 'STATIC!' that explores ways of using design to increase energy awareness and promote greener lifestyles. This elegant flower-shaped light has a secret: it _____ in your household. When it senses that power consumption is low, it rewards you by blooming—its metal petals unfold attractively. If you start using too much electricity, it closes up again. A single lamp can change the way you live! [3점]

- ① turns off the light
- ② checks power failure
- ③ generates enough electricity

- ⑤ encourages non-polluting energy use

27. Hollywood directors will sometimes do anything _____ . When Cecil B. deMille was filming The Ten Commandments, he was not satisfied with the crowd of actors playing Israelites as they heard the Commandments from Moses. The actors, he felt, did not display the correct degree of emotion. So he announced that a member of the movie cast had died that morning, leaving eight children behind. He asked that the actors observe two minutes of silence out of respect for their dead colleague. The actors stood quietly, with expressions of shock and sadness on their faces. He kept the cameras rolling and got exactly what he wanted on film. Afterwards he told them he had made up the story about the cast member's death.

- ① to achieve the effects they want
- ② to advertise their movies
- ③ to express their sadness
- ④ to save the expenses for movie-making
- ⑤ to amuse actors and actresses

28. San Francisco의 교통 상황에 대한 필자의 태도로 가장 적절한 것은?

As a native San Franciscan runner who refuses to drive, I sympathize with San Francisco drivers. The quality of our public transport system forces people to drive. Moreover, the city refuses to provide sufficient parking for cars. So, there are two choices: one is to pay huge parking fees, and the other is to use low-quality public transportation. A decade in New York taught me that good public transportation can provide much more to a city than simply destinations and departures.

- ① proud ② neutral ③ indifferent
- ④ critical ⑤ defensive

29. 다음 글에 드러난 필자의 주장으로 가장 적절한 것은? [1점]

We live about three houses away from the local post office and I use it a lot. A lot of elderly people visit and use it too. If it closes, it is going to have a tremendous impact on the community. People in rural communities pay as much tax as anyone else, but we won't rely on the services. Our next nearest post office is also facing closure, so we would have to travel six to seven miles in either direction to get to a post office. If we can't afford to drive there, we have to take the bus. Elderly people often find it very hard to stand outside in the bad weather waiting for buses. It is not just the elderly that use it — children on their way from school also use it.

- ⑤ things to prepare for a job interview

33. In the middle of winter, homes are sealed tight. Householders want to cut down on heating bills, so they make their home air tight. But while keeping the cold out, they keep in a surprising amount of air pollution. Then do we have to stop breathing the air in our home? According to a scientist, house plants can help keep indoor air breathable. He found that some common house plants had an appetite for certain poisons in the air. Lilac takes in large amounts of toxic chemicals, and ivy loves benzene. Someday all homes and offices will have indoor gardens built into them. They will be a normal part of the design of the building's air control system.

35. *sinju*에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

A sinju is a stick-shaped memorial tablet made of wood. It is about 20cm long and about 3~4cm wide. The name and a short history of the deceased are written on it. It is treated carefully with respect since it is regarded as the actual deceased person. Usually, it is kept in a small pot. In a crisis, such as disaster or war, those tablets were saved first by the descendants, because a sinju was just like their dead parents or grandparents for Koreans. That's why a phrase sinju tablet pot means something really important in Korea.

The chart above shows how global music sales have been changing over the last 17 years. ① As early as in 1990, the sales of cassettes were half as large as those of CDs. ② CDs and cassettes tied in the global sales in 1994. ③ Since then the compact disc(CD) has been the most popular of the three music formats. ④ Especially in 2002, the global sales of CDs peaked at 2500 billion US dollars. ⑤ However, global music sales have been steadily falling since 2002. According to the experts, free music downloads and on-line file sharing are partly to blame for the recent decrease.

39. Researchers have developed a software that scans the feelings on people's faces and then produces a piece of computer-generated artwork. It analyzes eight basic expressions, including the position and shape of the mouth, the openness of the eyes and the angle of the eyes. This information is picked up by a web cam, which uses data from the person's face to guess how the viewer is feeling. The program automatically chooses colors and types of brush strokes each time the person's expression changes, and then paints a new picture of his or her mood. The technology does all of this in real time. As the viewer's emotions change, the artwork responds accordingly.

- ① Emotions are too changeable to paint.
- ② New technology controls people's feelings.
- ③ A software estimates the value of pictures.
- ④ New computer art mirrors viewer's mood.
- ⑤ Web camera improves picture technology.

38. People regularly use scrubs, toners, lotions, eye creams, sunscreens, and special creams to keep their skin "trouble-free". Each cosmetic may contain 30 or 40 chemicals, some of which cause irritations or allergic reactions. If you use five different products at the same time, you mix up at least 80 kinds of chemicals! The skin is the essential barrier between our internal organs and the outside world. It is a remarkable protector, but exposure to many substances can be harmful. We often advise people to avoid using anything nonessential. We should show great respect to our wonderful "container". Just two products, a gentle cleanser and a good sunscreen, are enough daily skin care for most people.

41. In 1688, Sir Christopher Wren designed a magnificent town hall for the city of Westminster. The mayor was afraid that the second floor could come crashing down on his office on the first floor. He demanded that Wren add two stone columns for extra support. Wren knew that these columns would serve no purpose, and that the mayor's fears were baseless. But he built them, and the mayor was grateful. Years later, a workman saw that the columns stopped just short of ceiling. By building the "dummy" columns, both men got what they wanted. The mayor could relax, and Wren knew people would understand that his original design worked and the columns were unnecessary.

- ③ A Disaster Narrowly Avoided
- ④ Victory of Science over Superstition
- ⑤ Ways to Reduce Building Cost

42. Freshly cut grass, the aroma of a bakery, and the leather scent of a new car. Each may trigger "aromatic memories". A scientist tested this in a series of experiments. In one experiment, people were given a list of words and were instructed to memorize it. In half of the sessions, the sweet smell of chocolate was blown into the room. The next day, they were asked to list as many of the words as they could, in the presence or absence of the chocolate aroma. As it turned out, the most words were recalled when the smell of chocolate was present at both the learning and recall sessions.

A knight made his way to a great oak by the bank of the river. He lay down to sleep. In his dream he heard a beautiful song. Slowly he emerged from his dream. He opened his eyes. There beside the river was a young woman, dark-haired and dressed in white. She was singing that song softly and invitingly. The knight felt a great longing arise in his heart, and he closed his eyes again, just for a moment. When he opened them, she was gone and so was the song. Had he dreamt it? He shook his head, closed his eyes and opened them again. She was not there. And yet, he said to himself, it was no dream. Her earring was glittering on the grass.

Sparrows, however, don't always invite their flockmates to join in when food is found.

When a lucky sparrow discovers the bread, it sings loudly, and then, others are quick to arrive. (①) The louder the call is, the faster other sparrows arrive. (②) The factor that determines whether the songs fill the air is the size of the food item. (③) When a piece of bread that is too large to carry off or eat by oneself is found, sparrows call; otherwise they don't. (④) Then why should they call others over if the food item is large? (⑤) It seems that sparrows call other sparrows because having other birds around reduces the finder's chances of getting attacked by an enemy while eating.

Once upon a time in Africa, roosters ruled cats. The roosters said that (a) their combs were made out of fire and that they would burn anyone who disobeyed them! The cats believed them and therefore worked from early morning until night to gather food for the roosters.

(A) Then, shaking with fear, she put her paw near the rooster's comb and gently touched it. To her surprise, the comb was very cold, and it was just red colored! Fluffy joyfully went out and told the other cats the secret. From that day on, (b) the cats no longer worked for the roosters.

(B) One night, (c) the fire on the house of Mrs. Cat went out. She told her kitten, Fluffy to bring some fire from Mr. Rooster's house. When Fluffy went into the house of the rooster, she saw that (d) Mr. Rooster was fast asleep. She fearfully put dry twigs near the rooster's comb but the twigs did not catch fire at all.

(C) The king of the roosters became very angry and said to the cats, "I will burn all of your houses if you do not work for me!" But the cats said, "Your comb is not made of fire. (e) It is just the color of fire." The king of the roosters realized that the cats knew he had lied to them, so he ran away.

Person A The painting of George Washington crossing the Delaware River may be filled with errors. That painting was done in 1850, and until recently, most of us assumed that it showed a historical event accurately. However, a painting from 1893 has just been discovered. William Pedrick, the artist, painted an entirely different version of Washington's crossing. He showed Washington riding in a small boat with two other men, not in a boat filled with people. The familiar Stars and Stripes was omitted from Pedrick's painting. That flag was not adopted until after the Battle of Trenton, which took place after the river crossing. Pedrick's painting was based on facts. Let's set the record straight on Washington's crossing.

Person B Paintings do not have to represent history accurately. The creation of a work of art is an act of imagination; errors of fact don't matter much. The old painting has some things in it that may be inaccurate, but how can an event that took place in the 1700s be reproduced exactly? There were no photographs then. It is of no importance to argue about the existence of the Stars and Stripes in the original painting. People have always loved the original painting of Washington's crossing, and they will continue to love it as long as it exists. As for me, a painting's accuracy is least important. Art itself has a lot of meaning to us, I think.
